Father and daughter ISU alumni create endowment

Two Idaho State University alumni have joined together to create a scholarship opportunity surely to benefit both College of Pharmacy and College of Business undergraduate students.

The generosity of these alumni towards their alma mater is certainly commendable, but what also is unique is that they are father and daughter endowment providers.

Nile Boyle, 1956 College of Pharmacy graduate, and daughter, Julie Boyle Lindquist, College of Business graduate in 1984, recently established the Nile Boyle and Julie Boyle Lindquist Scholarship Endowment at Idaho State University.

Their endowment is designed to provide scholarships for underprivileged or minority undergraduate students in the College of Business or the College of Pharmacy who are not eligible for academic scholarships.

After graduating from the College of Pharmacy, Nile Boyle served in the military for three years before beginning employment with Reed Drug in Rigby, Idaho.

In 1965 he opened his own drugstore in Rexburg, Idaho. During Nile’s pharmacy career, he also spent nine years serving on the Board of Pharmacy, 16 years on the Rexburg City Council and nine years as Mayor of Rexburg.

In the fall of 1998, Nile sold his drug store to Broulim’s Grocery, at which time he and his wife Mona served as missionaries in New Zealand, Fiji and other areas of the South Pacific for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He is now retired.

Nile and Mona are the parents of eight children. Nile’s daughter, Julie Boyle Lindquist a 1984 graduate from the Idaho State University College of Business, currently resides in Salt Lake City, Utah where she is a vice president of American Express Bank.

The College of Pharmacy and College of Business thank Nile and Julie for their generous contribution to the education of undergraduate students attending Idaho State University.

Dr. Catherine Heyneman becomes ASCP Fellow

Dr. Catherine Heyneman, assistant professor for the College of Pharmacy Department of Pharmacy Practice and Administrative Science, recently fulfilled the requirement for qualification as a Fellow of the American Society of Consultant Pharmacists (ASCP).

ASCP Fellowship is a special honor bestowed upon pharmacists who meet the highest standards in senior care pharmacy and have demonstrated an extraordinary level of service and dedication in professional practice activities.

A Fellow of the Society must fulfill rigorous criteria established by the ASCP Board of Directors. A Fellow must demonstrate dedication and achievement in professional activities, educational activities, professional innovation, advocacy and civic activities.

The ASCP is an international professional association that provides leadership, education, advocacy and resources to advance the practice of senior care pharmacy.

Consultant pharmacists specializing in senior care pharmacy practice are essential participants in the health care system, recognized and valued for the practice of pharmaceutical care for the

Athay appointed to national APhA-ASP committees

ISU College of Pharmacy P-3 student Jennifer Athay has been appointed to serve on the American Pharmaceutical Association Academy of Students of Pharmacy National Executive Publications Standing Committee. The term of the appointment begins Mar. 28 2003 and runs through Mar. 25, 2004.

As a member of the APhA-ASP Standing Committee, Athay also is credentialed to serve as an official APhA-ASP delegate to the 2003 APhA House of Delegates as the APhA annual meeting this month in New Orleans.

Athay also has been appointed to serve on the APhA-ASP Pharmacy Student Editorial Advisory Board (EAB) as a regional liaison.

The EAB is responsible for corresponding with the publications managing editor, discussing story ideas and providing feedback on each issue.

Look for the College of Pharmacy Spring Bulletin in you mailbox in April or online at www.pharmacy.isu.edu